NEW LONDON HAS PATRIOTIC MAYOR

Prevented from Getting Into Service By Physical Disability
—Entitled on Strength of Record to Second Term—C.A. Pinney Now Captain of Police—Cronin Will Be Candidate For Senator.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 5.—Mayor Ernest E. Rogers is a real war governor, for more so than the war governor, for the mayor offered his service to the country in the military branch but was rejected by reason of physical disability, and he is now a lieutenant in the state guard, after long experience in the Connecticut National Guard. The mayor has made it a practice to say good-bye to every soldier that went into service from New London, from the time of the departure of the national guard companies down to the last increment that left the city under the selective service law. Whenever possible he told each individual soldier that he was ever ready to render any assistance within his power. No matter at what the hour of the soldiers' departure the mayor was at the railway station to give them a send-off. There have been times when the only citizen at the station to give encouragement to the boys, aside from relatives, was the mayor of the city. He is intensely interested in the soldier boys and frequently expresses regret that he cannot still them in the ranks. Every movement that has been made in the way of war work Mayor Rogers has been at the forefront, and he, more than any other individual has put New London on the war map.

He is a genuine and patriotic war mayor, to the extent of being willing to shoulder a gun and enter actual warfare on the battle front. He sure has the good will of New London's soldier boys and the relatives left behind appreciate the mayor's manifested interest in the boys. As mayor, his administration measures well with the average mayor of the city of New London, and he surely is entitled to renomination for a second term, fully as much as is the governor for a third term, if not more so. His open opposition to the nomination, on the republican side, was Alderman Harry C. Chappell and his brother-in-law, E. Frank Morgan. The former has developed into quite a war worker as an officer of the state branch of national defense and has devoted much time to that important work, while the latter does not figure very prominently in this patriotic work. Both, however, make claim for the nomination on the records established as members of the court of common council. But in this they do not equal the record of the present mayor. All have made municipal mistakes, as perhaps, have all the past and present members of that body. It is hard to see where either Messrs. Chappell or Morgan, have majority qualifications that are superior to those possessed by Mayor Rogers.

While interested in all that pertains to the war, some New Londoners also and time to play the political as well as the war game, although with all it is a war first and politics second, and with politics a very close second, at that. Already there is talk of deals, and deals that are thus early planned, and there is no doubt but some of them will be put over on the unsuspecting voters. Politicians, republicans and democrats, who profess to be straight party men, are playing the cards in the deal and it now looks as if there might be some political treachery pulled off on municipal and state election day. In these deals men prominent in the liquor business are the dealers and stack the cards to win their points. It is an open statement that the interests are in the game for the benefit of their business and without regard to party affiliation, which is right to a limited degree, but they may play a losing game if they exceed the limit, as some of the voters have their eye teeth out in the game of politics.

It is not wise to straddle a pair of horses, especially without special training, as there is liability in such an act to turn the conservative vote, the vote that is now with the liquor men, in an opposite direction. It is not good politics to make the liquor question the main issue in the coming city and state elections. After all it is not a bad plan to play fair even in the political game.

It was Mayor Rogers' ambition to have Charles A. Pinney, the full fledged captain of the New London police force, during his administration, and in this he has succeeded, and in so doing he believes he has accomplished a masterly political stroke. He surely has delivered the goods and now it is up to others to make good their promises. Some day the story of how the game was played may be told, but it sure would make interesting reading. Do you know who was back of the mayor in the undoing of the aspirations of Lieutenant Thomas Jefferson, and to make way for Pinney? It was a combination in fact and those in the combine included certain liquor dealers who consider themselves a good graces of the mayor, and which through a relative, who appears to be very close to Mayor Rogers.

It is now Captain Pinney and so it is said, he is going to inaugurate new methods in the conduct of the department, methods that he learned in Springfield and New York, by the good graces of the mayor, and which he intends to apply to the little New London force. He had not been captain twenty-four hours when orders were issued that hereafter all ordinary policemen must salute the captain in military style, which carries with it the understanding that there is to be no more familiarity between captain and men. The one is to order and the others to obey, and that's all there is to it.

The court of common council usually votes to support committee action, right or wrong, and perhaps that's a reason why, Captain Pinney received such a flattering vote at the council meeting that made him captain. John F. Murray, the alderman that heads the police committee, reported that the council was practically unanimous in favor of Pinney and it was he who made the motion that Acting Captain Charles A. Pinney be appointed a full fledged captain. Hereafter Mr. Murray has been almost as strong a supporter of the promotion of Jeffers as is Alderman Tom Grogan, and his changed action is a trifle puzzling, especially to those on the outside of the political game. Not a few are asking, Why Mr. Murray's change of front? Had he stood fast to what he formerly said he believed to be right, there would have been a divided report from the police committee as to whether the captain should be Jeffers or Pinney, and the result of the council vote might have been different. It is plain that the same parties who influenced the mayor to make war on Jeffers to make way for Pinney had a deal in the game that was played. The word was perhaps passed and Murray was convinced that it was for his best political interests, not to stick close to Jeffers, but fall into line and favor Pinney.

Mr. Murray, after due deliberation, may have satisfied himself that he was on the wrong track when he favored Jeffers, and made a mistake and verified the same. As a rule politicians do not work along such lines, and he is a politician, for he is chairman of the democratic town committee, as well as alderman, and so it is said, has majority aspirations.

It is said that Former Representative Frank Cronin, who was defeated by Senator James R. May, both of New London, is to be the republican candidate for senator again from the New London-Groton district. The conditions in so far as the expert political backing goes is practically the same. Mr. Cronin then had the support of certain political interests that seem to prevail in the democratic ranks, and some who are supposed to be supporters of May were in the deal to elect Cronin. The deal was so open that many of the voters revolted and voted for May and simply to demonstrate that the political dealers made a miscalculation and that all the voters are not within their grasp. The district is naturally republican and Mr. Cronin ought to win out, and he probably will if the political manipulators play on the level. Frank is a brother of former Representative Daniel Cronin, the prosecuting attorney for the city and police court of New London. As representative, Mr. Cronin served on the committee of the judiciary in the session of 1915 and was an influential legislature and regular attendant at the legislative sessions.

UNCASVILLE

Seventy-Two Children Weighed and Measured—War Stamps Campaign Has Good Success—Lawn Meeting at Mrs. Ralph Meicer's.

Seventy-two children under five years of age were brought to the Uncasville school building, Saturday afternoon, for weighing and measuring according to rules of the Child Welfare movement. Eleven of them were of American parentage, four of French Canadian, one of Polish and Ireland, others were of Polish or Russian parents. The majority of those weighed, etc., were found normal, some above normal, all considered fine children.

Worked Degree.

At the meeting of Thames lodge, 1. O. O. F., the third degree was worked on a class of candidates. After the ceremonies a fine supper was served under directions of Norman Allen. There was a large attendance at the entertainment of the Ladies' Social union of the Congregational church, held at the home of Mrs. Carl Johnson, Thursday afternoon. Red Cross work was done. Refreshments were served.
